Dr. W. P. Jacobs, president of the Thornwell Orphanage, has addressed a letter to The Advertiser in which he to Mrs. Cora Cox Lucas will be read thanks all of those concerned in making the visit of the orphanage children to the county fair a pleasant one. The letter is as follows:

Editor of The Advertiser:

of their lives on last Friday. They were the guests of the Laurens people, and sweeter and more attentive hosts and hostesses our children have never had. Mr. Livingston, president of the C., N. & L. R. R., has our sinthat the day was chock full of Laurens' superlative kindness. The first the auditorium of the Seelbach Hotel thing was the picture show and the in Louisville. last thing was the picture show, and in between were good eatings and good times. We noticed that the young people brought back to the orphanage fifty-two boxes of good things to escape the watchful eyes of your people. All of the exercises were enjoyed, and our young people took their places with keen appreciation of the opportunity thus given them. In addition to thanking all your people for their part in our entertainment, we wish to make especial mention of Miss Gray and Mr. Sullivan, who did so much to arrange this trip for our children. God bless every one of you.

Attended County School Fair Friday and were Greatly Impressed with the Exhibition.

A large number of educators of state-wide fame were, attracted here Susie Gray to Mr. Charles Rounds by the county school fair Friday. The which will take place this evening at reputation of this county for progresthe home of Mr. and Mrs. James sive methods along educational lines attracted them and judging from their known and very popular in Laurens comments they were amply repaid for where she has a great number of their visit. A number of them were outspoken in their praises of the event Laurens, where he made his home for and did not hesitate to state that in a couple of years. During his stay many respects it was far ahead of anything they had ever seen before. Among those here were State Superintendent of Education J. E. Swearingen, County Superintendents Felton, of Anderson, and Brown of Newberry. Misses Goggins and Garlington, rural school supervisors of Newberry and Anderson, Dr. D. D. Supt. Jas. H. Sullivan, Laurens, S. C.

Dear Sir:-

It was a great pleasure to note the splendid success of your Field Day. Laurens county is to be congratulated upon its pupils, teachers, school spirit and educational leadership. The exhibit at the court house was in many respects the best I have seen in South Carolina. The reading showed admirable work. The day points to continued progress in your schools. I hope next year will see a special tax and a seven months' term in every school in the county.

Yours respectfully, J. E. Swearingen, State Supt. of Education, Columbia, S. C., April 18, 1914.

Quarantine 'Em.

A number of towns in North Carolina have just been afflicted with the so-called street carnivals. In most cases these affairs have been voted a public nuisance of the first order. They are unsanitary invasions from both the physical and the moral standpoints They leave no end of trash and litter to be cleaned up behind them. The values offered for the money received are scarcely values at all, but mostly false pretence. The public taste is being lifted above them, according to reperts from the country at large, by the rapidly developing and improving movie" entertainment. Seeing that this latter form of cheap entertain-Mr. Preston Milam and Miss Janie ment is now available, it appears that the wisest thing for our public authori-

the start and a whole lot less in the end. That little extra you pay for a Majestic is an investment in quality that will pay dividends in service long after the ordinary range is worn out. The Majestic is made of malleable and charcoal iron, a combination that resists wear and rust three times as long as any other range metal. The Majestic saves fuel because it is cold-riveted, making oven air-tight without putty. This eliminates open joints and requires less fuel to maintain uniform heat. The Majestic is made in many styles and sizes, but only one quality—the best. You will do yourself an injustice if you don't examine the Majestic before you buy any range. Come to our store and see the Majestic. Compare it with any other range at any price. We know you will never be satisfied to buy an ordinery range after you know the quality and the advantages of a Majestic. Great Majestic Malleable and Charcoal Iron always!

TILLMAN IN GREENVILLE.

Makes Comment on Political Affairs and Greenville's Hospitality,

Greenville, April 18 .- "After his long and faithful service, if the Fourth district fails to return Representative Johnson to congress, I should consider that the district had acted discreditably," said Senator B. R. Tillman yesterday. The senior senator is visiting his sister, Mrs. Simpson and his neice, Mrs. J. B. Rasor. He stopped off at Greenville on his way from Clemson College, where he attended a trustees meeting, to his duties at Washington. Many friends called upon Senator Tillman yesterday, and it was during a conversation with them that he expressed his high regard for Congressman Joseph T. Johnson.

"Johnson is one of the most conscientious and one of the hardest workers in congress," said the senator, "and he is getting to be one of the most influential members of that permitting the beard to grow are not body. I am not trying to run things in this district, but want to say that to my mind it would be a disgrace to turn down an honest and efficient representative like Johnson."

The "Baby Factory,"

Senator Tillman spoke highly of the school fair, but criticised the lack of attention showed by the city. He said:

"I was very much gratified to see such a fine exhibition of children, but I was very much disgusted to see how shabbily the children were treated by the city. There should have been bands of music for the children.

"Greenville boasts much of its factories. The only factory I have observed which is worth mentioning is the baby factory, and Greenville didn't know how to treat that one."

Senator Tillman spoke of politics in general, but did not make any forecast of the senatorial election. He said the outcome of the election would be determined on the stump next summer. The manner in which the candidates conduct their campaigns, the stump speaking ability of each and the generalship showed will be a determining factor, said Senator Tillman. He listened with interest to discussions on the gubernatorial race, but appeared especially interested in the senatorial contest, and the contest in this congressional district.

The senator appears to be in good health. To a party of friends yesterday afternoon he told his now famous health formula, and formula for avoiding undue rotundency at the belt line. Senator Tillman pays strict attention to his diet, and is careful in other respects of his health. His paunch reducing exercise consists in lying in bed and kicking the headboard each morning. He said Senator Overman, of North Carolina, was a convert of his plan, but that the North Carolinian had not limbered up sufficiently to be able to reach the headANNOUNCEMENTS.
